Owner Rashida B. Adebiyi offers clients champagne to dull plucking pain, and asks them to sit upright while she works because she believes that lying down skews results. Instead of waxing (she warns that repeated tugging on the delicate skin above the eyes can lead to sagging lids), Adebiyi preps brows with vitamin E-spiked witch hazel and neatly tailors them with a tweezer, checking her work in a mirror across the room for overall perspective. Price: $50.

TWEEZERS 101

USE A SLANT TIP TO:

- Clean up peach fuzz.
- Shape the brow line.
- Remove strays.

"The edges of Rubis tweezers are aligned, so you're pretty much guaranteed to get a good pull every time, removing the hair down to the bulb," says Rashida B. Adebiyi of B. Spot salon in Chicago.

Shown here: Rubis No. 135 Stainless ($32; rubistweezers.com).
